

Thank you for the call – and a couple of open items

Leonie Schneider

l.schneider@globex-toys.de

To: Michael Berg <michael.berg@commerzbank.com>

Wed 14 Oct 2026 · 21:25

Dear Mr. Berg,

thank you for the pleasant call last week and the open exchange – it was overdue, and I'm glad we're making the relationship a bit more active again.

As discussed, please find our current financial report attached.

On the overdraft facility: I understand that continued non-use will trigger a commitment fee going forward, and that's fair enough. I'm confident we'll find a joint solution for that once we step up our collaboration.

On a related note, I'd like to talk about the investment loan we briefly touched on: Globex Toys is planning to expand capacity for outdoor play equipment at our Nuremberg site (a new production line). You'll find the current financing plan for that in the attached financial report. A final timeline for completion hasn't been set yet; site planning is still ongoing.

As I already hinted on the phone, we're also dealing with a few growing pains: our supply chain has become a bit more complex, and honestly it takes more internal effort than before to keep track of everything.

Could we get on a call about this again soon? Happy to do a video call if that's easier.

If anything in day-to-day business could move to self-service, that would save us time – but for anything involving real decisions, I still prefer to speak with a human contact.

Best regards

Leonie Schneider

Head of Finance & Strategy, Globex Toys GmbH

Client correspondence – forwarded internally for review. Figures and details are illustrative, for training purposes.